National Black Nurses Association Announces 2021 Nurses of the Year

The National Black Nurses Association (NBNA) is pleased to announce its 2021 Nurses of the Year. “NBNA is pleased to select 8 nurses and a nursing student to receive its Nurses of the Year Award, stated Dr. Martha A. Dawson, NBNA President. “We are delighted to choose nurses of such high caliber who have exemplified the best in nursing in a variety of categories. They were selected for their outstanding contributions in the areas of leadership, innovation, research, business and science.” “It is incredibly rewarding to recognize and honor one’s colleagues who have made an indelible mark in their communities and the profession of nursing,” said Dr. Sheldon D. Fields, Chair, Scholarship and Awards Committee.

The awards will be given on Saturday, August 7, 2021, 2:00 p.m. – 4:00 p.m., during the Awards and Scholarship Ceremony, which is part of the 49th Annual NBNA Institute and Conference, August 4-8, 2021 and 50th Anniversary Celebration. This is a virtual conference.

The theme of this year’s conference is “Celebrating 50 Years of Innovative Community Service, Practice, Education, and Research in Nursing.” NBNA is expecting 500 nurses and student nurses to attend the conference. NBNA is comprised of nurses at all levels, from LPNs to nurses prepared at the doctoral level; bedside clinicians, chief nursing officers, deans of schools of nursing, researchers, academicians, policy advocates and entrepreneurs.
