The National Black Nurses Association (NBNA) serves as a national nursing body to influence legislation and policies that support comprehensive efforts to reduce gun violence and its devastating impact on Black individuals and historically marginalized communities. While gun violence affects all communities in the United States, it has a disproportionate impact on young adults, males, and racial ethnic minorities. NBNA calls on the 118th Congress to address gun violence as a leading public health issue that negatively impacts the health and well-being of all communities and to recognize that gun violence disproportionately impacts the physical, mental, and social well-being of Black communities regardless of the perpetrator and is sometimes racially motivated by hate.
