Message from President

As we approach the close of 2014, it is time to reflect on the progress of the sentinel report from the Institute of Medicine (IOM) on the Future of Nursing, Leading Change, Advancing Health in 2010. The report was released in October 2010 by the IOM along with support from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF). The report recommended that nurses be allowed to practice to the full scope of their training and education, improve opportunities for nurses to act in healthcare leadership roles, and increase the numbers of nurses with BSN degrees. (Davis, 2013)

More states are increasing the autonomy of advanced practice nurses and are increasing nurse enrollment in BSN programs. The IOM looked back at the past three years to see what had changed and acknowledge that some change has occurred but not nearly enough. More states have enacted improved advanced practice guidelines for nurse practitioners including the states of Iowa Kentucky Maryland Nevada North Dakota Oregon and Rhode Island. Fifteen additional states have recently introduced bills to remove the physician oversight requirements for APRNs to practice. (Davis, 2013)

Regarding education and training, the proportion of employed nurses with a BSN or higher degree was 49% in 2010 and 50% in 2011. “Progress is likely to accelerate in the years to come,” Fineberg and Lavizzo-Mourey wrote, “because between 2011 and 2012 along there was a 22.2% increase in enrollment in RN-to-BSN programs and a 3.5% increase in enrollment in entry-level BSN programs.” The authors also noted a recent increase in the number of students enrolled in nursing doctoral programs. Of the 51 action coalitions, 48 have worked to enable seamless academic progression in nursing. (Sullivan, 2013)

The National Black Nurses Association (NBNNA) has continued its focus on diversity and remains highly committed to its mission and its support of the recommendations from the IOM, including the IOM’s report that nurses should be full partners with physicians and other health professionals in redesigning healthcare in the United States. Strong leadership is critical if the vision of a transformed health care system is to be realized. It is also imperative that the field considers not only leaders from diverse backgrounds but also how to lead and influence diverse constituents as partners in our mission because the demographics of the United States are increasingly more diverse.

The NBNNA is committed to eliminating health care disparities. We recognize that the nursing professional can play a leading role in finding solutions and pushing for change in that area. We cannot separate our priorities from the IOM call to prepare more nurses to take formal and informal leadership roles at hospitals, in board rooms, and as participants in the political arena. In all those sectors, inclusion and an embrace of diversity is essential to forging paths to developing new nurse leaders.

As we move forward, NBNNA is committed to supporting leaders, within our ranks and among all nurses, who are pledged to the transformation and redesign of health care. This will enable us to provide strategies that document best practices, determine research needs, track lessons learned, and identify replicable models of success. We will continue to partner with critical stakeholders. We can gain valuable input from a cross-section of constituents. Together we build credibility through open and trusting cross-cultural relationships that influence decisions and decision-makers. We can shape the future. Not only do we act as champions of change for our profession, we advance new and transformative possibilities for our community.

A Convention of Delegates

Azella C. Collins, MSN, RN, PRP
Chicago Chapter NBNA

The word convention commonly refers to an assembly of delegates, who are usually chosen specially for each session as representatives of their chapters. Together the delegates and individual members comprise a larger group of people, the National Black Nurses Association (NBNA). The bodies of delegates act in the name of their local chapter. The most common type of convention is that of an established national organization. The delegates are selected by, and from among, the members of each local chapter.

Conventions normally vary in size, duration, and complexity of operation. A relatively small state society may hold a one-day convention consisting of two or three meetings at which all delegates are present. A week’s convention of a national scientific or educational association, on the other hand, may be divided into a number of specialized sections meeting separately at the same time, with only a few meetings when the entire body of delegates gathers in one hall. The latter is how NBNA operates.

The NBNA voting membership of a convention consists of persons, who hold proper credentials as delegates and such membership, is certified and reported to the convention by its Credentials Committee; and individual members. Whenever the term “majority of the entire membership” is used … it means, in the case of a convention of delegates, a majority of the total number of convention members entitled to vote, as set forth in the official roll of voting members of the convention (pp. 403–4, 617).

The Credentials Committee’s master roll of currently registered voting members of the convention should be maintained at all times in such a way that their exact number can be promptly determined. Accuracy of the list of registrants is essential, since it may affect the outcome of elections or closely contested issues. If the bylaws or the convention’s standing rules do not prescribe a quorum which they should do—the quorum is a majority of the number of voting members who have actually registered, irrespective of whether some may have departed.

To change the program after its adoption requires a two-thirds vote or the vote of a majority of all the delegates … of the convention who have been registered—or unanimous consent, which can usually be obtained with no difficulty in cases where a departure from the program is justified. An affirmative vote to adopt the program cannot be reconsidered. The committee can recommend changes if and when needed while the convention is in progress, but neither the presiding officer nor the Program Committee is free to alter the program as adopted—only the convention can change the program after its adoption. In NBNA all delegates must be present and voting. As a delegate you were elected to represent your chapter and vote.

To ensure as complete representation at the convention as possible, the bylaws at the convention level provide that each NBNA chapter shall elect a certain number of delegates and alternates.

If an alternate is to replace a delegate who has registered, proper evidence of that delegate’s withdrawal from such status must be presented to the Credentials Committee, and the alternate must be reregistered as the new delegate before he can sit or vote as a member of the convention. It is the duty of any registered delegate who ends his presence at the convention to see that his departure is promptly reported to the Credentials Committee, and to whatever authority is concerned with locating the proper accredited alternate if one is available. Unless the rules of the body provide otherwise, no alternate or other person can “substitute” for a delegate who remains registered. In other words, a delegate’s temporary absence from the convention hall does not entitle an alternate to make motions, speak in debate, or cast the delegate’s vote, even with the delegate’s authorization, unless a rule of the body permits this procedure. NBNA has no such rule.

Robert’s Rules of Order Newly Revised has been adopted; the rules within it, together with NBNA bylaws, special rules of order, and standing rules are binding upon the NBNA and constitute the rules of order.

WE ASKED, YOU RESPONDED.

To help support the latest goals set by the Institute of Medicine, the National Black Nurses Association and Capella University are partnering to explore whether African Americans are appropriately represented in the nursing field—and how African Americans can be better supported as they join the nursing profession.

Do you think there are enough highly educated and qualified African American nurses to meet the needs of the 21st century hospital?

- YES: 9%
- NO: 91%

88% said no

Are higher education nursing programs doing enough to support and encourage African Americans to pursue health care/nursing careers?

- YES: 12%
- NO: 88%

88% said no

What could higher education institutions and health care organizations do to boost the number of African Americans in the health care/nursing industry?

Open-ended responses to this question fell into these categories:

- 36%
  - Provide African Americans monetary support for higher education such as scholarships, grants, and fellowships

- 22%
  - Early education engagement through partnering with high schools, community colleges, and community organizations

- 22%
  - Specifically recruit for jobs and higher education programs within African American communities/schools and publications

- 15%
  - More mentorship support from current African Americans in the field

- 5%
  - Create leadership development for African Americans in the nursing/health care profession to support career advancement

These results are based on 203 survey responses.

A note of appreciation:

“I am a new member of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Black Nurses Association. I am very impressed with the National Black Nurses Association. They are striving for excellence in their nursing profession. It makes you proud to be a part of this diversity. As we continue to be partners with physicians and other health professionals, we are moving toward healthcare collaboration. It was truly a pleasure to be able to attend and participate as a member of the host chapter (SEPA-BNA). The workshops and speakers were terrific! It is fantastic to know that this organization helps nurses who are pursuing higher education by providing scholarships.”

Reflections on the NBNA Conference

Cheryl A. Lane, DNP, ANP & FNP-BC, CWCN, CRRN
Certified Adult and Family Nurse Practitioner; Certified Wound Care Nurse; Certified Registered Rehabilitation Nurse
UAB Hospitals; Member, Birmingham Black Nurses Association, Inc.

F OR QUITE SOME TIME, the founding president of the Birmingham Black Nurses Association (BBNA) and this year’s trailblazer award winner, Mrs. Deborah Walker, has been telling me that I need to attend a National Black Nurses’ Association (NBNA) Conference. She said that it would be so inspiring and something that I would thoroughly enjoy. I have a lot of respect for Mrs. Walker and the local chapter members of the BBNA. Mrs. Deborah Walker, Mrs. Geneva Irby (another founding member), and other members of BBNA have been very supportive of me even before I became a member. They held health fairs at my church including blood pressure checks, diabetes management, and information on healthy eating and active lifestyles. They have been very active in the community and are truly legends in the field of nursing. I thought that all I really needed to do was to look at my local chapter to get all the inspiration I needed because the members are so dedicated and caring. They encourage each other and are very involved in the community and with the local schools of nursing to encourage young nurses.

This year, I finally had the opportunity to attend the NBNA conference in Philadelphia, Pa. The opportunity came as a result of Deborah Thedford-Zimmerman’s vision to have a wound and ostomy care workshop at the pre-conference session. She said it had never been done at a NBNA conference before and it was definitely something that was needed. She paved the way so that three of us with an interest and certifications in wound, ostomy, and continence care from the Atlanta chapter who will be hosting next year’s edition, had no doubt that they did a fine job. In this day and time, it is so wonderful to have young intelligent, dedicated, gentleman like Adam Smith, from the BBNA who represent the young Black male presence in nursing so well. Our future looks brighter with the young people in this organization. I also had the opportunity to network with nurses from several chapters including the Atlanta chapter who will be hosting next year’s conference. I definitely plan on attending next year!

Mrs. Deborah Walker is absolutely correct! Attending a National Black Nurses Association Conference was truly inspiring, motivating and something that I will never forget. Attending and speaking at the NBNA conference in Philadelphia is something that I would never have dreamed of growing up in a small town in Alabama. But, I do know that I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me. Just as He has done for nurses before me, those with me now, He will do for nurses in the future. My faith is my foundation in nursing and in life. I’m thankful to God for ordering my life, directing my footsteps, for having the BBNA available locally, and allowing me this wonderful opportunity to participate in the NBNA conference!
The Value of Mentorship within Nursing Organizations: Skills and Professional Development for NBNA Members.

Julia Ugorji, MSN, RN
DNP Student, Black Nurses Association of the Greater Washington DC Area

Mentoring is a multidimensional relationship that energizes personal and professional growth. Nursing organizations with mentorship programs have enhanced the skills and growth of their members as nurse leaders, educators and staff nurses. Mentorship program as a professional developmental tool is critical in other to meet the health care needs of our patients. By sharing information and insights with members of their own organizations, experienced nurses enable others to maximize their potential thereby improving patient care and ultimately strengthening the nursing profession (Block, Claffey, Korow, & McCaffrey, 2005). Through effective mentorship, nursing organizations can positively impact the healthcare organizations, improve job satisfaction, and promote professional development and empowerment among their members. Most importantly, mentoring can result in improved nursing care, high quality healthcare, and improved patient outcomes.

In order to meet the complexities of the healthcare system in this 21st century, mentorship programs within nursing organizations are critical. Nurse leaders, practicing nurses, and organizations have benefited from mentorship programs within nursing organizations. Mentorship programs can help to address the challenges associated with retention, burnout, professional growth and career development (Race & Skees, 2010). Through mentorship programs nursing organizations such as the National Association of Nigerian Nurses in North America (NANNNA), National Black Nurses Association (NBNA), American Psychiatric Nurses Association (APNA), and Association of Nurses in AIDS Care (ANAC) have improved the skills, professional growth, and career development of their members in leadership, grant writing, abstract writing, podium presentations and evidence-based nursing care. Based on literature review implementation of mentorship programs in nursing organizations have numerous values and benefits on improved patient outcomes and professional growth (Block et al., 2005). As nurses, we have a responsibility to our profession and patients to enhance the professional development of our members through mentorship programs.

Using Patricia Benner’s Model of novice to expert which asserts that professional growth occurs in distinct stages and relies on constructive, nurturing relationships, nursing organizations can improve the skills of their members through mentorship programs (Benner, 1984). This framework is an excellent model whereby novice nurses could greatly benefit from the knowledge and wisdom of a proficient or expert nurse mentor. NBNA has leadership programs where by the expert and proficient nurses mentor the younger ones to enhance their skills in leadership, Abstract writing, and career development (NBNA, 2013). According to Block et al. (2005) nursing organizations such as Sigma Theta Tau and Oncology Nursing Society embraced the value of mentorship by utilizing unique mentoring programs that advocate for an environment supportive of nurses where professional and personal growth is fostered.

Effective mentoring programs can benefit all who invest in them through recruitment, retention, improving morale, and promoting professional development. As a new faculty few years ago, I was about to quit my job, but through mentorship program from senior faculty members I was able to succeed. According to Race and Skees (2010) there are challenges that new and seasoned faculty members experience in academia, however, there are also a number of strategies that may be helpful in facilitating a successful transition to the role through mentorship.

In conclusion, as an essential task for nursing, leaders and experts today is to create a sustainable nursing workforce in a health care system that is currently undergoing significant changes including the loss of experienced nurses to retirement, and new graduates to horizontal violence. Mentoring within nursing organizations is one method that can enhance leadership skills, staff satisfaction, and therefore can reduce the feeling among nurses that they are being devalued, discriminated against, and disempowered by their own peers (Bally, 2007). Nursing organizations understands that mentorship programs enhances staff development, and assist nurses to adapt to new and different roles. As a means of achieving success, this will lead to increased job satisfaction, more effective nursing care, promote quality health care and increase patient outcomes.

Under 40 Forum: Be the CEO of your Life and Achieve great Success!

Romeatrius Moss, DNP, RN, APHN-BC
President, Mississippi Gulf Coast Black Nurses Association, Inc.

BY DEFINITION THE CEO or Chief Executive Officers are the highest ranking executive who develops and implements high level strategies, corporate decisions, and direct overall growth of a company. Think about this definition and apply this to yourself. Who is the CEO in your life? Is it your parents, spouse, or society? Do you understand that you have the power within yourself to achieve greatness? The sooner you recognize that you have the ability to make power moves, live unapologetically in your greatness, and to shine like the sun, the quicker you will get the results you seek.

I became aware of my new position, sophomore year of college. The year I switched my major from Pre-Med to Nursing. I had fired my parents from the position of CEO and redirected a new strategy. I began to live for me and my desires. Although I kept my family on board as my supporters and donors, I realized I was in charge of ensuring my success and happiness. The CEO of Romeatrius Moss had specific goals; to become the expert in my field, foster mentorship among nurses, act locally on national issues, and obtain my doctorate. To achieve such a task, a team needed to be in place to ensure I was successful.

Who are your board of directors? Every great leader has a cadre of advisors, trustees, or officers. By definition, a board of directors are elected or appointed members who jointly oversee the activities of a company and help run the organization. Your board of directors should be people who have your best interest at heart, understand your desires and mission, and will help you make choices. These are people who are in positions to make calls, send emails on your behalf, write letters, and open doors of opportunities for you. Remember that board members have terms, and may be used for a purpose. Recruit mentors and respect their position. Board of directors can include congressmen, nurse leaders, corporations, nurse magazine editors, and a marketing agency. Seek a nurse you want to emulate and recruit her/him to your board. Don’t be afraid to ask for what you want.

BRANDING: Ensuring that your brand is intact is very important. What type of nurse do you want to be known as? The one who is dependable? The one who eats their own? Your brand begins as a student nurse. Seek feedback and constructive criticism. Evolve and change to be the person you need to be. You belong to a wonderful profession of one career, one thousand choices. Find your niche and live in it! Don’t be afraid to let people know how great you are. For tips on how to strategically inform people of what you are doing without creating haters, pick up the book Brag! The Art of Tooting Your Own Horn without Blowing It, by Peggy Klaus.

INVESTMENTS: Make investments in yourself and strive to be on the cutting edge. Seek further education, training, skills, and knowledge to become the expert in your field. Strive to be great. Dr. Janice Phillips book, “Accelerate Your Career in Nursing: Nurse’s Guide to Professional Advancement and Recognition” is a great place to start if you need guidance on how to reach your career goals.

CEOs have the ability to both be in the present and become their vision of the future at the same time. Strategic planning is important for CEOs. What are your 3-5 year goal? What about your 10 year plan? Too many people are busy doing things that have absolutely no effect in forging them forward. Use your time wisely and focus on professional development within yourself. Cut out the waste in your life and replace it with meaningful strategic moves, such as studying for a certification, applying for your masters or doctorate program, or mentoring other nurses. Seek membership with other organizations, serve on local boards in your community, write articles, allow people in your circle to know you. Doing these things will help you and your investors see the “Return on Investment” sooner, reaping the financial rewards of success and developing you into the nurse leader you are destined to become. Special acknowledgement to Dr. Debra Toney, fierce nurse leader, for your vision and guidance.

Dr. Romeatrius N. Moss is an active duty Air Force Captain, currently the Flight Commander for the 1st Special Operations Medical Group, Family Health Flight, Hurlburt Field Air Force Base, Florida. She holds a DNP from the University of Alabama at Birmingham, a MSN, from University of South Alabama, and a BSN from Berea College. She holds a board certification in Advanced Public Health Nurse. ABCs of Safe Sleep: Help Reduce the Incidence of SIDS

Theresa Rodgers, DNP, RN, CPNP-AC/PC, AE-C
Birmingham Black Nurses Association
Children’s of Alabama, Birmingham

WHAT IS SIDS? American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) has the following definition. “Sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) is a cause assigned to infant deaths that cannot be explained after a thorough case investigation, including a scene investigation, autopsy, and review of the clinical history.” The AAP also defines sudden unexpected infant death (SUID). SUID is any sudden and unexpected death, whether explained or unexplained (including SIDS) that occurs during infancy. SUIDS can be attributed to suffocation, asphyxia, entrapment, infection, ingestions, metabolic disease, arrhythmia-associated cardiac channelopathies (electrocardiocardial dysfunction), and accidental and nonaccidental trauma (http://pediatrics.aappublications.org/content/early/2011/10/12/peds.2011-2284.full.pdf+html)

The American Lung Association has listed several risk factors for SIDS at the following website: http://www.lung.org/lung-disease/sudden-infant-death-syndrome/understanding-sids.html. Though SIDS affects all socio-economic groups and races, the incidence is two to three times higher in African American and Native American infants. SIDS deaths occurs most in winter months, more prevalent in males, and occurs most often in infants 1 month to 1 year of age with most occurring between two to four months.

The AAP has made several recommendations regarding sleep since the Back-to-sleep campaign in 1994. The guidelines have been expanded since 1994. The AAP recommended that infants be positioned on side or back but back was preferred in 2000. The recommendation was that infants should be placed on back only in 2005. The latest recommendations were in a policy statement released in 2011.

The AAP was focused on safe sleep environments along with back-to-sleep recommendations (http://pediatrics.about.com/od/sids/a/Back-To-Sleep.htm). The Policy Statement had the following recommendations:
- Use a firm sleep surface
- Room-sharing without bedsharing
- Devices promoted to make bed-sharing “safe” are not recommended
- Keep soft objects and loose bedding out of the crib to reduce the risks of SIDS, suffocation, entrapment, and strangulation
- Pregnant women should receive regular prenatal care
- Avoid smoke exposure during pregnancy and after birth
- Avoid alcohol and illicit drug use during pregnancy and after birth
- Breastfeeding is recommended
- Avoid overheating
- Infants should be immunized
- Avoid commercial devices marketed to reduce the risks of SIDS
- Supervised, awake tummy time is recommended to facilitate development and to minimize development of positional plagiocephaly (flat head syndrome)
- Health care professionals, and child care providers should endorse the SIDS risk-reduction
- Media and manufacturers should follow safe-sleep guidelines in messaging and advertising

RECOMMENDATION: Keep soft objects and loose bedding out of the crib to reduce the risks of SIDS, suffocation, entrapment, and strangulation. There is no evidence that bumper pads prevent injury but can actually cause suffocation or entrapment.

Which crib is ready for an infant to go to sleep?

RECOMMENDATION: Media and manufacturers should follow safe-sleep guidelines in messaging and advertising. Both cribs were found on the internet marketing to parents or custodians in need of a crib.

The decrease in the incidence of SIDS has reached a plateau. The FDA in a consumer health information report offers the following guides or ABC’s to reduce the risks of SIDS.
- Alone in their own beds
- Back to sleep – every sleep
- Crib

“Alone on the Back in a bare Crib” is the message for every family with infants. You can help reduce the incidence of SIDS. Spread the word!
Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Executive Nurse Fellows Program Provides Leadership and Professional Development to Emerging Nurse Leaders

Debbie Chatman Bryant, DNP, RN, Director for Partnership for Healthcare Quality Research at the Medical University of South Carolina (MUSC) and Director of Outreach and Community Relations at Hollings Cancer Center, MUSC, has been named one of just 20 Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJF) Executive Nurse Fellows for 2014. Dr. Bryant joins a select group of nurses from across the country chosen to participate in the final cohort of this world-class, three-year leadership development program that is enhancing the effectiveness of nurse leaders who are working to improve the United States health care system.

For her leadership efforts as a community-focused health advocate, Dr. Bryant received the prestigious Robert Woods Johnson Foundation Community Health Leaders Award in 2012. Miami Chapter, NBNA

Dr. Marie O. Etienne, Public Relations Chair, was recently appointed by the National Nursing Committee (NNC) of the American Red Cross to serve as an International Nurse Consultant for the American Red Cross and will serve as the Chairperson for the International Nursing Committee for the American Red Cross, which reports to NNC.

Miami Chapter BNA embarked in a great initiative for Back-to-School Backpacks & Supplies Give-Aways to underserved children at Allapattah Middle School.

The Central Virginia Chapter has been very active. As of January 2014 until now, our chapter was involved with many community projects such as the “Get to Red” with the American Heart Association (AHA), Petersburg Wellness Consortium (PWC), and other community involvement. We are also active in the mentor partnership program with the School of Nursing at Virginia State University (VSU).

The beginning part of the year has been very busy for us with some of our members being involved with community projects every 2 to 4 weeks. On January 19, 2014, the day before Martin Luther King Holiday, there is a huge basketball event called Freedom Classics between HBCU Virginia State University and Virginia Union University. We participated in helping get the word out on Stroke Prevention in partnership with the AHA. This was a great event since African Americans have the highest rate of getting a Stroke than any other racial group. February was a busy month in which we were heavily involved with AHA. We participated in the second annual “Go Red at VSU” basketball event in which several organizations, including ours participated in Stroke Prevention. We volunteered at the annual AHA Go Red Luncheon in Richmond, Virginia for raising money for charity. We volunteered with other organizations and AHA at Macy’s Department Store on February 8, 2014, Go Red Day in awareness of Heart Disease in Women. Janet Porter participated as a spokesperson from the CVC-NBNA in getting speakers to speak from a survivor’s point of view of heart disease in women at First Baptist Church of South Richmond. Along with the many community involvement, we had members go to the Annual NBNA Capital Hill Day on February 12, 2014.

In April, we participated in the 3rd Annual VSU Cares in partnership with Mission of Mercy, with phone registration and VSU Health Fair on April 12, 2014. We participated in teaching about the importance of exercise and disease prevention after a zumba class at the First Baptist Church of Centralia. On April 22nd 2014, Janet Porter had a 10 minute cardio workout at her place of employment and talked about the benefits of exercise.

In May 2014, we were involved with some community involvement and it was also a time to reflect. On May 9th, 2014, Janet Porter spoke at the Department of Nursing Pinning Ceremony at Virginia State University. On May 18th, 2014, Janet Porter, Immediate Past President of CVC-NBNA received the Glowing Lamp Award by Chi Eta Phi Sorority, Inc., Eta Chapter. In July 2014, Janet Porter represented the CVC-NBNA at the Virginia Nurses Association Roundtable discussion on Diversity in Nursing in the Workplace and the Academia. The event also had speakers from the Philippine Nurses Association and the Assembly of Men in Nursing. She spoke from an African American nurse point of view and how to increase the diversity of leadership in the workplace related to nursing. Janet is a Clinician III on the Acute Neurosurgery Unit at Virginia Commonwealth University Health System.

Central Virginia Chapter of the National Black Nurses Association

Janet Porter, BSN, RN, Immediate Past President, Central Virginia Chapter, spoke on May 9, 2014 at the Virginia State University Department of Nursing Pinning Ceremony. On May 18th, 2014, Janet received the “Glowing Lamp for the Nurse Award” by Chi Eta Phi Sorority, Inc., Eta Chapter. In July 2014, Janet represented the CVC-NBNA at the Virginia Nurses Association Roundtable discussion on Diversity in Nursing in the Workplace and the Academia. The event also had speakers from the Philippine Nurses Association and the Assembly of Men in Nursing. She spoke from an African American nurse point of view and how to increase the diversity of leadership in the workplace related to nursing. Janet is a Clinician III on the Acute Neurosurgery Unit at Virginia Commonwealth University Health System.

In June 2014, we participated in different community events such as the Hispanic Festival at the Sacred Heart Center in Richmond, Virginia and invited a speaker at one of our meeting to speak about “Alcohol: Pathological Effects on the Liver”.

In July 2014, Janet Porter represented the CVC-NBNA at the Virginia Nurses Association Roundtable discussion on Diversity in the Workplace.
